Junior High Pupil Gets National Award

Omar Qureshi, son of Dr. and Mrs. Arif Qureshi of 6947 Reeds Corners Road in Dansville, is the recipient of special academic honors.

The Junior High School student has been named a National English Merit Award winner. He was nominated for the award by Barbara Hellwig, English teacher at the school, and his biography will appear in the 1988 United States Achievement Academy National Awards Yearbook.

The student also was chosen as a Scholastic All-American on the basis of school achievement. His biography will appear in the Scholastic All-American Scholar Directory. This award also makes him eligible to compete for scholarship grants awarded by the National Secondary Education Council.

County to Host Affiliate Artist

The Genesee Valley Council on the Arts will host Affiliate Artist guitarist Stephen Robinson, Mar. 7-12.

Hailed by The New York Times for his "effortless virtuosity with intelligence and good taste," Robinson is recognized as one of the "most exciting classical guitarists." His five top prizes in major competitions, including the XXII Concours Internationale de Guitare in Paris and the VI Concurso Internacional de Guitarra "Alirio Diaz" in Caracas, Venezuela, coupled with a critically-acclaimed 1983 New York debut, have launched a distinguished performing career.

Selected to join the roster of Affiliate Artists for the 1987-1988 season, Robinson's active concert schedule as a recitalist and soloist with orchestras across the country. He is featured in television films produced by the British Broadcasting System (BBC), PBS, and the Venezuelan Ministries of Education, and his performances have been broadcast on National Public Radio and Radio France.

Robinson is the recipient of a National Endowment for the Arts Solo Recitalists Fellowship for 1985, and will use the funds to present a solo recital of 19th and 20th century American guitar works at New York's Merkin Concert Hall. A native of New York, Robinson began playing guitar at the age of nine and performed with popular groups for many years. Since beginning his studies of the Classical Guitar with Bruce Holzman, Robinson has worked closely with such international figures as Oscar Ghiglia, Eliot Fisk, and Andres Segovia, who called Robinson "one of the most brilliant guitarists of our times." Robinson is the first doctoral candidate in Guitar Performance at Florida State University, and is the founder and head of the Guitar Department at Stetson University and the Southeastern Music Center Summer Festival.

During his residency in Livingston County, Robinson will appear before various groups in a series of "Informances" (informal performances), all of which will be free and open to the public.

Any organization interested in hosting a program should call the Council office at 243-1522 between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Affiliate Artist residencies are made possible by public funds from the New York State Council on the Arts and the Genesee Valley Council on the Arts.

County 4-H Sets Tractor School

Starting Wednesday, Feb. 24 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Charles G. May Vocational School in Mt. Morris, a series of five meetings will be conducted to qualify youths 14 and 15 to drive a tractor.

Classes are open to any boy or girl who wishes to learn about engines, how they run, and how to care for them. This program will qualify a boy or girl to drive a tractor for hire upon successfully completing the instruction classes, passing the required quiz and a driving test. Those 13 and turning 14 by early fall may attend this course. If they pass all qualifications, they will receive their certification on their 14th birthday.

Along with the Unit I certification program, the 4-H tractor program will cover an advance unit for those completing the certification last year. This program covers machinery and how they operate, how to service and maintain equipment in good working order, safety around farm tractors and attachments. Those who took Unit I last year may want to take the advance unit this year.

Anyone wishing to take this program should register at the Livingston County 4-H office by Feb. 15. For further information and to register, call 658-3250.
